Stacking the Cards Against You

Freezing out the small investor is a favorite game of the crooked industrial promoter, and you haven't a chance to beat him.

Most "Blue-Sky" projects do not live beyond the stock selling stage. But sometimes the idea "looks so good" that, after the stock selling harvest has been reaped, the promoters decide to manufacture and market the article.

Even then your money is not safe unless the heads of the business wish to play fair with you. They know a score of ways to get rid of "the suckers" and keep everything for themselves. Quite often they make free use of this knowledge. So it is not enough to know that the idea you are putting your money behind has merit, not enough to be convinced that "there are millions in it," there may be millions in profits waiting, but whether or not you are to receive your share will depend entirely on the integrity of the men in control.

The Four Stragglers

By FRANK L. PACKARD

Copyright, 1923, G. H. Doran Co., Serialized by Ledger Syndicate.
Captain Francis Newcombe raised his head from his pillow, and propped himself up on his elbow. A door nearby suddenly opened. Other doors were being rapped upon. Voices came.
The ex-captain of territorialists springing from his bed, thrust his feet into slippers, threw a bathrobe over his pajamas, opened his door and stepped out into the hall. Some one had already turned on a light. He found himself among a group of fellow guests, whose number was being constantly augmented. From other doorways, wary of their exposure, disheveled women's faces peered out timidly; their voices, less restrained, demanding to know what was the matter, adding an hysterical note to the scene.
"A shot was certainly fired somewhere in the house, though I couldn't place where it came from," declared some one. "I am quite sure of it."
"There is no question about it," corroborated another. "It woke me up, and I ran out here into the hall."
"The Earl is not in his room?" announced a third excitedly. "I've just been there."
"Ring for the servants!" screeched an elderly female voice. "Some one may be killed!"
"For God's sake!" snapped a man gruffly. "I didn't hear it myself, but if a shot was fired it's fairly obvious by now that it wasn't fired up here! What are you standing around like a pack of sheep for?"
"What's what?" was wondering said Captain Francis Newcombe softly to himself, and joined the now concerted rush down the stairway.
Lights were going on all over the house now, and the men servants began to appear. The rush scattered from one room to another. A cry went up from some one ahead of it. It turned the rush into the dining room, and there, in their motley garbs, chorusing excited exclamations, the crowd surrounding the two gagged and bound guards.
Then some one else shouted from the pantry that the metal chest had been broken open, and that the gold service was gone. There was another rush in that direction. Captain Francis Newcombe accompanied the course." "Exactly?" retorted the other. "But not near enough to the house to be heard. Did anyone hear a motor after that shot was fired? Of course not! We may get them before they get their motor. Also, well use a motor, too! Anyone of the chauffeurs here?"

"Yes, sir," answered a man.
"Good! Anyone armed?"
"I've got the Earl's revolver," said Captain Francis Newcombe.
"Well, there's the gun room!" said the man who had assumed command. "And you servants get lanterns and things. Look lively now! Sharp's the word!"
And for some reason Captain

Francis Newcombe smiled grimly to himself, as he followed his person to the chauffeur, and accompanied these other pajama-clad guests from the house.
At the garage Captain Francis Newcombe appropriated the front seat beside the chauffeur, his fellow guests scrambled into the tounet, and a moment later the big car shot around the end of the house and began to sweep down the driveway.
The ex-captain of territorialists revolved around in his seat for a backward glance as they tore along. Every window in the great, rambling castle-like edifice appeared to be alight; this caused a flimsy, lighted zone without, and through this raised ghostly figures in bathrobes and dressing gowns that were almost instantly swallowed up in the shadows of the trees, and from among the trees, dancing in and out, like huge flames in their effect, there showed in constantly increasing numbers the glint of lanterns.

But now the motor was at the lodge gates, posing the main road, and the chauffeur pulled up.
"Which way would you say, sir?" he asked anxiously.
"I'd vote for whichever is the shortest way to London—that's to the left, isn't it?" Captain Francis Newcombe responded promptly. He turned to his fellow guests, "I don't know what you think about it?"

MINERALS NEEDED FOR DAIRY HERD

Farm Institute in Fairfield, February 14-15—Walworth County News.

BY L. J. MERRIAM.
This year when a great many of our farmers have little or no clover or alfalfa hay to feed, there are many dairy herds throughout the county that are actually starving for minerals. This is a serious situation for several reasons.
In the first place such cows cannot maintain their milk flow and a number of calves. This can be prevented and cheaply by feeding either a prepared mineral feed or three to four pounds of steamed bone meal in each 100 pounds of grain. These materials can be purchased of or ordered through most feed dealers. It is far better for a general proprietor from the standpoint of cheap milk production and profit to grow and feed a large acreage of alfalfa which supplies both protein and minerals. This is the only way who do not grow alfalfa or sweet clover pasture are apt to find themselves in the poor house.

The only farm institute to be held in the county this year will be given at Fairfield, Feb. 14 and 15. An unusually good program has been arranged. The day school is especially good on practical farm poultry, and swartz is second to none on alfalfa and fruit. Every farmer should be present. The program is as follows:
Thursday, Feb. 14
Winning with the Dairy Cow

The Revival
High Egg Average

Mrs. L. H. Phelps, of Grange, had the highest record flock of all the farm flocks co-operating with the university poultry department in the state for both December and January. Her flock of over 100 hens each, the average production for Mrs. Phelps' 260 pullets was 15.27 eggs per bird or production of 59 percent. This is a remarkable production for the month and was produced under ordinary farm conditions. Perhaps Mrs. Phelps' story will be of help and interest to others.

The thing that Mrs. Phelps regards as most important in egg production is the laying machine. This is a machine that is made of home grown grain and is made up of 50 per cent ground corn, 20 per cent bran, 20 per cent middlings, 10 per cent oat meal, and one-half of 1 per cent charcoal. This mash is kept before the hens in hoppers where they can help themselves at all times. But while the whole grain is fed in the morning, but they are given all they want at night. A light feed of grain in the morning and a large quantity of mash in the evening is very necessary for the high egg production. The scratch grain consists of three parts of corn to one part of oats. Mrs. Phelps does not like to use too much oats as they are too high in fiber. She also has the large objection to barley in large quantities. The hens are given all the sour skimmed milk they can drink, otherwise, Mrs. Phelps says she would have to use buttermilk instead of 10 per cent as she says it is very necessary that they get the animal protein.

Good Housing.
Mrs. Phelps attributes a lot of her success to the way she raised her pullets. She hatched them about the first of April and fed them a growing mash throughout the summer while they were on range. They were housed about the first of October, not being outside again. In this way, they were never accustomed to changing and started laying during the latter part of October and were ready with heavy egg production in November and December when eggs were high. She says next year she will house them a little earlier as they did not lay as heavily as they might have early in November. She finds it necessary to have the flock in readiness for egg production in time in the fall to take advantage of the high prices of eggs. The one who does not get the flock going until January has missed a premium. The house is not expensive. Two years ago an old hog house was partitioned off, covered overhead with a straw loft to lower the roof and make it warmer, and lath before put in the south end for ventilation. The straw loft also aids in ventilation. The remodeling was entirely done by farm labor at old times and at a minimum expense. Outside of waterers and mash hoppers, no expensive equipment was used. Dropping boards were placed under the roosts to keep the litter clean and give the hens the entire floor space. These dropping boards are cleaned on the average of twice a week.

The Feed Costs.
The average feed cost for the flock of 260 hens with all feed charged at market value was between $50 and $55. The egg production sold for approximately $125, leaving a return above feed cost for the one month of $140 to $145. This shows what is possible of a flock of hens under ideal conditions in the best months. One, however, should not be misled by thinking that this can be done every month. However, the average farm owner can get the greatest opportunities for improving their incomes from their poultry by adopting right methods of anything on the farm.

Purchasing Line.
George Stonell, Floyd Tibbets, Will Libbey and others of that vicinity recently unloaded five cases of liniment. They say they are going after the alfalfa and sweet clover for they found that was where the money lay.

ELECT J. J. McCANN STATE SECRETARY
J. J. McCann, 14th, president; William M. McCann, 14th, vice president; J. J. McCann, Janesville, secretary-treasurer; Scott Barle, Prairie du Chien, advisory director; with Robert T. Traylor, Albert Mader and R. E. Reynolds as directors, were the officers named by the Wisconsin Shorthorn Breeders' association during the annual meeting held in Madison the last week. There were 30 attending the state banquet.

No action was taken as to establishing a field man or paid secretary for selling cattle in Juneau County. The action being offered during the business meeting of this plan.
The growing demand for Milking Shorthorns was detailed during the program. Farmers were favoring this breed. "Farmers in the western states do want to milk," declared Reid Murray, secretary of the Wisconsin Livestock Breeders' association.

The need of two new cattle barns at the Wisconsin state fair grounds was detailed by Reid Murray, secretary of the Wisconsin Livestock Breeders' association. It is proposed to erect one barn to house around 500 beef animals, and use the other new barn and old structure for dairy cattle.

Commissioner John Jones, Jr., spoke during the meeting and declared there was too much effort to create new land by drainage and cut-over timber. He said that there "was plenty of land under cultivation to supply present needs."

"I believe in giving the farmer a chance on the farm to produce more farm land, especially when a big part of this land is not fitted for agriculture," he said. On some of the swamp land and cut-over timber, a farmer could not make money to leave his soil, and there is always the fine message. We need timber too badly to take land out of production. Mr. Jones, Jr., and Scott Barle were other speakers.

Jefferson Guernsey Boosters

JEFFERSON COUNTY GUERNSEY BOOSTERS

Jefferson county is a leader in Guernsey cattle, due to active association efforts, the county unit now having 110 members. During the past two years, as the result of association activities, Jefferson has enjoyed a strong demand for Guernsey cattle and has developed a steady trade for the surplus stock.
In J. C. Holstein, secretary, Jefferson has a full time field man to take care of Guernsey interests of the county. The association also put over a successful calf club during 1923. Each month there is a social gathering, which helps to promote breed interest and county spirit. During the 1923 fair season a herd of show Guernseys was exhibited in Wisconsin and Iowa. During the last year there were sold through the association 27 purebred bulls, 46 purebred females and 209 grade females, having a total value of $50,000.

The Jefferson association will hold its February meeting in Eagles' hall, Port Atkinson, Feb. 22.

When it comes to traveling in style, millionaires have "nothing on" Wisconsin Holstein cattle. Two of such animals left Waukesha county recently bound for Auckland, New Zealand. The cattle were sent by express to Montreal in a palace car, the latest modern type of de luxe transportation vehicle. At Montreal the boat was held two days while awaiting the arrival of the royal Holsteins, delayed on account of storm.

Graber is an interesting and informative speaker and a big crowd is expected. The meeting will start at 8 p. m. Farmers considering the growing of alfalfa or having trouble in raising the crop are urged to attend, for after the speaker they will be a discussion, in which an effort will be made to answer questions.

HIGH RECORDS IN WISCONSIN C. T. A.
Madison-Holstein cattle continue to lead in production while vendors of the 1st cow testing associations of Wisconsin, according to the December reports compiled by A. J. Chamber of the state college of agriculture.

High production honors for individual cow went to John Wuthrich, Greenwood, owner of a Holstein whose yield for the month was 21.4 pounds of butterfat, or the equivalent of 112.2 pounds of butter.
High milk production honors for the herd went to Robert L. Roy of Eau Claire county. This herd yielded 12.4 pounds of milk per cow for the month from 12 cows.

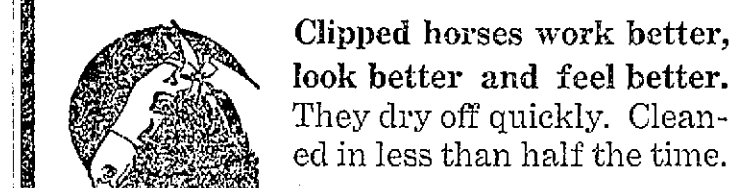

Clinton Steves, Racine county, had the high fat producing herd, with 15 cows making an average of 53.3 pounds of butterfat, or the equivalent of 266.5 pounds of butter, for December.

HENRY WIELAND IS BUREAU PRESIDENT

Officers Elected at Meeting of Directors — To Complete Membership Campaign.

Henry Wieland, Jr., Beloit, was elected president of the Rock County Farm Bureau, with H. O. Natista, Clinton, vice president; H. C. Hemminkway, Janesville, secretary; and E. P. Coen, Milton Junction, treasurer. During the meeting of the directors at the court house Friday, C. O. Oensard, Plymouth, Leo Campbell, Evansville, and A. M. Saunders, Harmony, were named to the executive board.

The Rock county bureau now has a paid-up membership of more than 600 and will continue the membership campaign in the unannounced half of the county as soon as weather and travel conditions permit. The bureau officers also directed that the area test petitions be circulated again until 150 more signatures are secured to assure the desired percentage.

JUDGING CONTEST
Certificates will be issued to the 10 high men participating in the judging contest at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, won by Rock county, with Highland, second, Dane, third and Chippewa, fourth. In all, 405 judging cards were turned in and checked. In the final computations, Rock placed four men in the 10 high, the team standing being J. C. Niska, 89; Robert Traylor, 83; Archie Reid, 80; and Lewis C. French, 79; with Roy Huggins and L. E. Jackson both near the 10th position with scores of 77 and 72. Traylor was second high judge on swine, one of the most difficult classes offered in the contest.

"ABBEY OF AMERICA," WILSON'S RESTING PLACE

Cathedral of Sts. Peter and Paul, Washington, where the body of Woodrow Wilson will be entombed.

It has long been planned that the great national Cathedral of Sts. Peter and Paul (Episcopal), now only one-eighth completed, should take the place in this country that historic Westminster Abbey does in providing for a last resting place for the great dead of England. Consequently, the entombment of the body of Thomas Woodrow Wilson, war president of the United States, in it is deemed a fitting inauguration of the plan.

ONLY WOMAN MEMBER OF G. A. R.

Mrs. Mary Hansen.

Kipling must have had some such mother as Mrs. Mary Hansen of Sioux Falls, S. D., in mind when he wrote "Mother o' Mine." Mrs. Hansen learned that her son was ill in Detroit. Without funds to make the journey to his bedside by rail, she started out on foot, and with the help of lifts from motorists went all of the thousand miles alone.

YANKEE BOSSES MOVE FOUL LINES AT NEW BALL PARK, BUT BABE SMILES

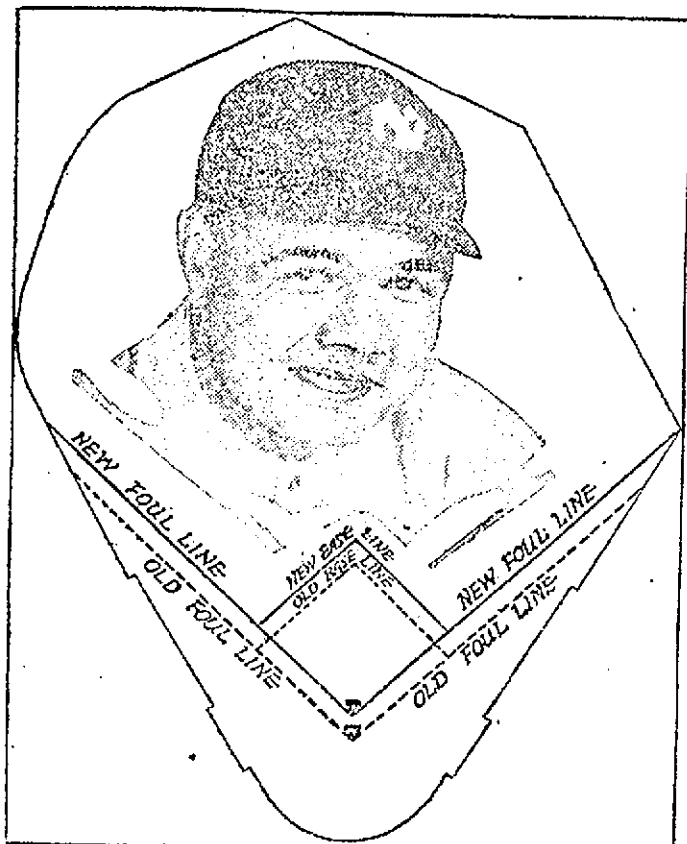

Diagram showing how home plate was moved forward in Yankee Stadium and how change lengthened both foul lines. The gentleman in the center smiles for himself.

The entire infield of the Yanks' new ball field in their mammoth stadium, has been moved out from the grandstand ten feet, on a line from home plate to center field. The change is made to eliminate the so-called "bloody angle" in the right field part of the new Yankee stadium, improve the view of the fans in that section, and give the catchers more room in which to range for high fouls. The shift increases the length of the left field foul line twenty-four feet and of the right field line thirty-seven feet. The change does not worry Babe, however, for it brings the bleachers and other points where he drops his homers nearer home plate.

Miss Julia Marcum.

Miss Julia Marcum, 79, of Williamsburg, Ky., is the only woman member of the G. A. R. and the only woman who draws a civil war pension in her own name. She was never actually a member of the federal forces, but she fought with detachments in the neighborhood of Huntsville, Tenn., and lost an eye and a finger in one combat.

A camera study of Dr. Cary Grayson as he announced the death of Woodrow Wilson.

The uttermost devotion of Dr. Cary Grayson to former President Woodrow Wilson during his long illness is being widely remarked. A photo of him taken at the instant he announced to the newsmen, "That's all, boys. He passed away at 11:15," shows the sorrow thrust upon the physician by the death of his beloved friend.

PRESIDENT AND MRS. COOLIDGE PAY TRIBUTE TO WILSON

President and Mrs. Coolidge were among the first to call at the home of former President Wilson after his death to leave cards and express condolence. They called at the house in S. street within an hour after the news was flashed to the White House that the former chief executive was dead. Although of different political parties and faiths, Mr. Wilson and the President were good friends of long standing.

FALL'S NOTE "SCRAP OF PAPER" IN OIL SCANDAL

The note (with the signature missing) which Edward L. Doherty, oil mogul, said he received when he loaned $100,000 to Albert Bacon Fall, secretary of the interior.

It's just a scrap of paper, but it is one of the most famous scraps of paper in United States history. When Edward L. Doherty, oil operator, produced it and told the senate committee it was his receipt for $100,000 he loaned to Albert Bacon Fall, the signature was found to be missing. Doherty says his wife kept the other part of the note.

A sketch of Miss Harriet Hewitt by Harrison Fisher, and (inset) a recent photograph of her.

Scarcely was the ink dry on the interlocutory decree of divorce obtained by the wife of Oliver Curley Harriman, eldest son of the millionaire banker, Oliver Harriman, before New York began hearing that he would be married to Miss Harriet Hewitt, former mannequin in an ultra-fashionable Fifth Avenue shop, as soon as the decree is final.

Isadora Duncan has lost her "life and inspiration." She has obtained an official separation under soviet law from her poet boy-husband, Serge Essenine, Russian peasant. "And they got their man." That's a line in every story about the Royal Northwest Mounted Police of Canada, the stalwart men in red uniforms who supply material for so many movie plots. The latest exploit of the force is the capture after twenty-eight months of trailing of two Eskimoes, Sinisak and Uluksak, who murdered two French Canadian priests, Rouvier and La Roux. They were trailed through the Arctic Circle and then brought back by a party headed by Inspector C. D. La Nauzen, a hero of the World War, whose dog "Mike," (in front in the picture) was his constant companion.

How to Steer Your Car in Tight Corners

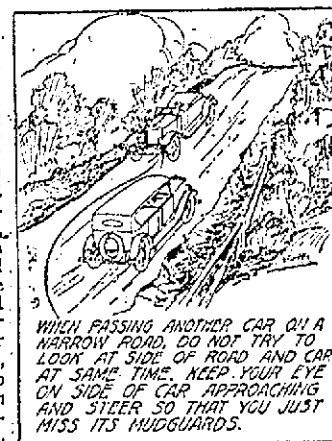

It usually takes some little time before you can call yourself a GOOD driver, and it takes considerable practice. It takes quite a long time, however, to find out everything if your only teacher is "experience." You will probably agree that if for instance you wished to learn how to play golf, you would learn much faster if you had a professional golfer show you how to hold your clubs and make the various shots. The professional has found by closely studying the game, the best way to play it, and he can show you more in a few hours than you could learn in probably several months without his assistance.

In driving an automobile, there are certain things that you will learn in time, but in these articles I have tried to show you some of the finer points in driving that will help you to become a good driver in a much shorter time than you will without help of any kind.

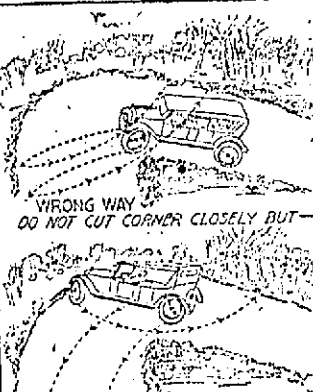

One of the first things you want to cultivate, is how to judge distance. Say you are driving down a narrow steep hill where there is barely room enough for two cars to pass. You put your foot on the brake pedal and suddenly find out that the brakes will not act properly. What is the best thing to do to safely pass the car that is coming up the hill toward you?

First, DO NOT TRY TO WATCH BOTH SIDES OF THE ROAD AND THE APPROACHING CAR AT THE SAME TIME. Your eyes cannot be in both places at the one time. Just keep as cool as you can and fix your eye on the side of the car approaching you, and steer so that the mudguards of your car just miss the mudguards of the other car. If you glance first to one side then to the other, you are liable to misjudge the amount of space you have and either run into the approaching car or into the side of the road.

Many smashups have occurred because the driver became confused up or accident. Accidents are usually the result of carelessness on some one's part.

WHEN PASSING ANOTHER CAR ON A NARROW ROAD, DO NOT TRY TO LOOK AT BOTH SIDES OF THE ROAD AT THE SAME TIME. KEEP YOUR EYE ON SIDE OF CAR APPROACHING AND STEER SO THAT YOU JUST MISS ITS MUDGUARDS.

I have mentioned in previous articles the necessity for keeping the brakes in perfect order. A very large number of accidents are caused by failure of the brakes to act properly in an emergency. The brakes should be deliberately tested at least once every week if you are using the car daily. At 15 miles an hour, two wheel brakes should be able to stop the car in 21 ft., or if you have 4 wheel brakes, you should be able to stop in 14 ft.

Keep your brakes in good order, then if you want to avoid trouble, learn how to use them properly. If you have to jam on the brakes harshly and feel the rear of the car begin to skid, relieve the pressure on them for the fraction of a second while you straighten up the skid, then give the brakes another hard jab. Keep your eyes open, train yourself to watch for children playing in the road, obstructions round corners, blind corners, etc., and play safe by keeping your car under such control that you can at all times bring it safely to a stop before you reach any object in front.

without changing wheels or rims

In addition to making balloon tires in the 20 and 21 inch rim sizes; GOODYEAR is prepared to furnish balloon tires to fit rims on most cars now in use. In other words, you can put GOODYEAR balloon tires on your present car in most cases without the expense of special wheels and rims.

You can enjoy all the comfort and easy-riding advantages of the new flexible sidewall, low-pressure tires at the very minimum of cost.

In approving balloon tires and offering them to the public, GOODYEAR does so with a full and unsurpassed first hand knowledge of their possibilities. For years GOODYEAR test cars shod with these tires and riding as on great pillows of air, have been shuttling back and forth over roads of all kinds, under actual service condition.

The experience gained in these and other tests has enabled the manufacture of a balloon tire that is tested and proved in every point of practical usefulness. The results have been such as to justify in all ways the immense tide of balloon tire enthusiasm now sweeping the country.

We are prepared to give you all necessary information in regard to equipping your car with either the small-diameter or interchangeable type of GOODYEAR BALLOON TIRES.

Which Road do you travel each month?

PLANS NO. 1758-1759

This California Bungalow Home of more than ordinary attractiveness is, because of its unique and practical details being submitted for your consideration and if the Exterior meets with your fancy, we know you will find in the alternate floor plans a room arrangement that will care for your requirements.

This is an ideal plan and represents a sensible, durable home.

We are anxious to be of every possible assistance to the readers of our paper, and in writing the Home Building Editor for information regarding Home Building you are assured in advance that it will be gladly given.

WHO WOULDN'T rather have a real home than merely a place "where one can hang up his hat"?

Who wouldn't rather travel along the wide, smooth road than a narrow, rocky trail?

"Foolish questions," some will say. But not so, in the light of the doings of men whom we all know. This parting of the ways is reached by every married couple starting out in life together. "Shall I deny myself for a few years and live in comfort thereafter, or shall I waste all my income now and pay for it later?" The question must be answered.

Some choose the left-hand road, level at first, but becoming rougher the farther one travels it. Almost unconsciously one reaches the place where going becomes difficult, and at last the traveler ends his journey in the Valley of Lost Hopes, where the vultures of Want and Adversity and sickness and despair constantly hover, ready to pounce on their prey.

Some choose the right-hand path. It may be rather steep at first, for it leads upward. But the longer one travels this highway the easier it becomes. Soon one may ride in an automobile instead of walking, and finally the traveler reaches the summit, the beautiful home where the sun of Prosperity, constantly shining, bars the approach of the vultures living in the abyss below.

Just ask yourself what value you place on all those rent receipts which you may have been accumulating for five, ten, twenty years. Add up the sums they represent and see how many homes you could have built for what you paid for the now worthless slips of paper. One, two, three, maybe. And yet you haven't a place to lay your head which you can call your own.

Isn't it about time to "right about face"? For you who read this it may not be too late. If you have a moderate degree of health and are able to support your family, you can travel the broad, beautiful highway to home ownership.

While you rent, you are never sure of a place in which to live. At any time the landlord may notify you to vacate. When you own your own home, you have a feeling of permanency to be gained otherwise. It may mean a little self denial for the first few years, if you have not yet saved anything. But the longer you travel the upward road the easier it becomes. It is just the reverse on the other and downward path.

WHICH ROAD DO YOU TRAVEL EACH MONTH?

Right here in this city where you live there are progressive firms and individuals who are interested in your future. They wish to see you succeed and have spent their own cash in order to put before you the desirability of acquiring your own home. They have retained the services of experts who will give you advice on how to proceed. Some of these friends are named below. Write for information at once—don't delay a day—addressing your inquiry to "Home Building Editor," care this paper.
